Ten years ago, we entrusted Roy with the construction of our home, and the results were nothing short of exceptional. Roy's commitment and attention to detail, quality and workmanship was evident throughout the process.

However, what has impressed us even more, is the character and integrity RTAbbott has demonstrated a decade later.

After the heavy rains in California last year, we discovered water leaks in our home. Roy stepped forward without hesitation! Rather than distancing himself from a project where his warranties had expired, Roy took a personal interest in resolving the problems. He and his staff went to extraordinary lengths to investigate the issues, identify the causes, and see that the necessary repairs were made.

Building a beautiful home is one thing. Standing behind that home over ten years later speaks volumes about a person's character. Roy has earned not only our appreciation, but also our deepest respect and trust.
